FRENCH FAUX BAMBOO MIRROR IN DARK HONEY-TONED WOOD, CIRCA 1900

$2,450

A French faux bamboo mirror from circa 1900, featuring a rectangular wood frame with turned bamboo-style detailing and a warm dark honey-brown patina. The frame is composed of rounded vertical and horizontal rails, each carved with raised ring details to imitate natural bamboo. The corners are neatly joined and slightly rounded, giving the mirror a quieter, more restrained profile than some of the more elaborate faux bamboo examples, while still retaining the texture and charm associated with turn-of-the-century French decorative design.

The wood has an attractive aged surface, with tonal variation, darker wear in the grooves, and small marks that contribute to the antique character of the piece. Its simple proportions make it especially versatile for use in an entryway, powder room, bedroom, dressing area, or above a small chest or console. The darker honey tone pairs well with antique woods, painted furniture, wicker, rattan, and layered traditional interiors, while the faux bamboo design adds a relaxed decorative note.

Elegant, understated, and practical in scale, this circa 1900 mirror brings warmth and texture to a wall without feeling overly formal.
